NATIVE DRESS AND BRITISH

SUBJECTS.

THE notification by Sir Rutherford Al-

cook on the question of Chinese-British subjects meets a necessity which has long existed. It has hitherto been possible for "British subjects" of the class it deals with to enjoy facilities which are. not merely inconsistent with international law, but which have inflicted real and serious injury upon foreign commercial interests at many places in China. Before briefly indicating the advantages which will accrue to foreign residents at the open ports by the stringent enforcement of this notification, we may be permitted to point out an error into which most of our China contemporaries appear to have fallen - regarding the status enjoyed by Chinese who by long residence in a British colony are popularly supposed to become British subjects. We have before drawn attention to the erroneous notions entertained on this point, but apparently without effect. According to the law of England, residence in a British colony does not confer the right of naturalization upon an alien, beyond the limits of the colony in which he resides. In special instances British naturalization is extended to the children of locally naturalized Asiatics if they be born in a British possession, but even this does not extend to Hongkong, so that the

This misapprehension disposed of, we may consider the notification on its own merits. It may be observed that this regulation is not a concession on the part of our representative to the Chinese Government, requiring perhaps some reciprocity on their side; on the contrary, it is a measure strictly protective for our own interests and devised, we may fairly assume, to prevent the lamentable results which have unavoidably attended the extension of a too liberal naturalization law to Ionia, Malta and other places in the Mediterranean. The evil so often commented upon as existing there, is however slight compared to that which has commenced and would fructify to

THE GREAT EARTHQUAKE We are indebted to a leading resident for the subjoined extract from a Lima paper:-On the 13th of August, a few minutes before 5 P.M., the shock of an earthquake was felt in time, which without being violent, and without having caused any damage, nevertheless created great alarm amongst the inhabitants, on account of its strange character which in nothing resemibled the slight shocks which are here so frequent: it was a prolonged trembling without noise and increasing in violence which continued nearly four minutes. The instinct of the people attributed this phenomenon which was repeated within an hour afterwards, the not for so long a time to some earthquake whose last oscillations had reached to Lima, and there were many who considered it as the precursor of some frightful ruin.

On the following midnight, a grea alarm apread over the city on account of the innumerable multitudes of persons who arrived from the neighboring port of Callac political intercourse, it appears that there swept away Callao; the waters of the se never goes beyond the expression of an pened, although the sea continued for guerant curiosity. The flourishing city of Arica, through which the greatest part of our commerce with the neighbouring Republic of Bolivia flowed, and which was the most picturesque of our ports, after having been destroyed by the earthquake, was obliterated by the sea. There, as in the other towns on the coast, the water after having retired considerably, fell with irresistible force on the ruins of the buildings and has left a sad and silent beach, where but a short time before was activity and life. -We see from the Sumatra Courant, that much excitement prevails amongst the naferior rank, to be Tuanku Panglina of Padang, passing over, it seems, the Tuankin Bundarah, the long designated successor to the post; a member of the high nobility. descended in a direct line from a former powerful native prince; and who has a great influence over the population. The dissatisfaction has not hitherto resulted in deeds of violence, but from some demonstrations. it may be inferred that it is by no means imaginary. The Malay natives have been tumultuously demanding that their so much revered adat (custom) be not infringed. Rumour speaks of Malay opposition and deeds of violence, which may perhaps take place at the impending installation of the newly appointed Regent. The Malay aristocracy will go as one man to the Governor-General, with a request for protection against the arbitrary attacks lately made on the adat of the Malays of Sumatra's West Coast. As we understand, a great number of chiefs, from the interior. and highlands, have joined issue with the discontented and it is thus to be foreseen that upon this question further serious perhaps indeed fatal, events may depend.

The Java Bode of 3rd Oct., says:-If commotion prevails at Padang it is much worse in the Far North; namely among the Battas of Silindong. There is a general war there. People know how such wars arise. A pair of Rajahs, miniature kings over one or two campongs, quarrel with each other, obtain allies, attack defenceless people belonging to the hostile campong, when they go to the passar; or carry off women and children whom they sell as slaves. Sometimes they send champions into the hostile componed by night to musder whom they can. From time to time a formal fight takes place, which however is parties is killed or wounded. AFTER THE FUNERAL. -Of all returnings.

that one "after the funeral" is the saddest. Who will say that it is not so, that ever followed a beloved one to the grave? While he was sick, we went in and out, anxious, orrowing, suffering. The solicitude to relieve and care for, and comfort him, excited and agonized us; the apprehension of our own desolation in case he should be removed from us, almost drove us wild. While he lay dead beneath the home roof there was hurry and bustle in preparation for the final rites. They are old fashioned and prejudiced, but not without their good points. Mr.H .- (complimentarily) A man so intimately acquainted with their language and literature as yourself, must be able to do full justice to their characters and to overthrow some prejudices on the part of Englishmen?

Mr. W .- There it is! Because I have some slight acquaintance with the Chinese language I get credit for being lenient to their faults. but no doubt having that effect. The Chinese system of trade is intimately bound up with their whole financial arrangements; if the one be interfered with, the other must be injured; and a Government without a treasury cannot last very long. Mr. H .- But I thought all these monopolies were, so far as foreign goods are con-

THE TREATY PORTS OF CHINA & JAPAN," AND "NOTES AND QUERIES ON CHINA AND JAPAN."

EXTRACTS FROM REVIEWS. (From the "Friend of India," June 4, 1868.)
We acknowledge with thanks the receipt of the numbers for the current year of "Notes and Querien," a most deserving Anglo-Chinese monthly, edited by Mr. N. B. Dennys, whose "Treaty Ports of China and Japan" are so well known. From the names attached to the "Notes" we can see that the contributors include some of the best Chinese scholars in the East. Its interest is not confined to China, and it will be of valuable assistance to all scholars, who have directed their attention towards the subject of Buddhism and its literature, and generally to all who are interested in oriental antiquities. It deserves to be better known in India.

Some time ago we had occasion to remark upon the progress that Literature as represented by the Press had made and was making in the East, and our attention has again been called to the subject by the receipt of a Hongkong publication which deserves some notice and which we have much pleasure in introducing to the knowledge of our readers. We allude to Notes and Queries on China and Japan, published monthly by Mr Saint, the proprietor of the China Mail newspaper. This publication is well printed on good paper, and in size and shape is very like its well-known namesake or prototype at home, and is equally a mine containing very curious and useful information regarding the language, literature, history, manners and customs of the Chinase and in a less degree of the Japanese. It says a good deal for the extent and stability of the footing of Europeans in stability of the footing of Europeans in China, that such a publication as this should be established and conducted with apparently successful vigour.

The publication is altogether a very interesting one; and wishing it every success, we commend it to the attention and support of our readers.

(From the "London Examiner," May This really useful volume ["Treaty Ports of China and Japan"] is intended as a guide for travellers and residents in China and Japan, and as a book of reference for mercantile men generally. It contains an account, historical and political, of all the open ports of these countries, together with Peking, Yedo, Hongkong, and Macao. It has been carefully compiled and edited by Mr N. B. Dennys; and the elaborate maps and plans, with which the work abounds, considerably enhance its value. * * * - We have thus given in outline some of the more prominent portions of the chapter devoted to Canton, as a specimen of the whole volume. Other chapters treating of Macao, Formosa, Ningpo, Shanghae, and the remainder of the treaty ports, we can only enumerate. The pages describing Peking, the capital, are so interesting, and contain so much that is new to European readers respecting its history, public buildings, and general characteristics, that we would fain transfer them to our columns. A complete and intelligible plan of the Imperial City and neighbourhood, gives us an accurate notion of the relative position of the divisions streets and places. its divisions, streets, and places.

In the introductory chapter to the notices of the Treaty Ports of Japan will be found a succinct history of that Empire, together with remarks on its government, geography, and limits, which will be found particularly interesting as throwing a considerable light on a part of the world so long entirely, and still comparatively, unknown to Europeans. The descriptions of Nagasaki, Yedo, Yokohama, and the other Treaty Ports of Japan, are as elaborate and entertaining as those of the Chinese ports. A copious index and a useful appendix containing many hints and much appropriate advice to travellers and others, is also included in the volume. The entire work affords a vast amount of information, pleasantly written, and we doubt not will be perused with interest by many who will never visit the Kastern seas.
